Autobiography:

Hi! I'm Jerry Yu, a senior at Piedmont High School in California. My interest in AI began during an English research project on AI-generated art, which led me to delve deeper into machine learning—especially how diffusion models create images out of noise. Over the past few years, I've explored the math and programming behind different types of AI, from simple regression models to large-language systems.

Outside of AI, I enjoy competitive programming, teaching, graphic design, and working on engineering and creative tech projects. I'm also a big music enthusiast with a personal CD collection. I'm excited to keep learning, meet other peers passionate about AI, and compete at the IAIO!
